WHAT ELI THINKS.

The Chicago Tribune has the following dispatch from Eli Perkins, dated at Wichita, March 28:

When in Kansas from Kansas City to Salina, and from Salina to the Indian Nation, looks fine. Along the Santa Fe road, around Emporia, Newton, Winfield, Arkansas City, Howard and Cherokee, it could not look better. The outlook for wheat in Kansas, is ten per cent. above previous years. Farmers along the Santa Fe road are all prosperous.

In Missouri, I also find wheat very fine. At Warrensburg, Johnson county, the second grain raising county in the United States, the farmers all told me that the outlook could not be better. Acreage is increased in Missouri. A tremendous boom in real estate is going on all over Kansas and Missouri. In Indiana, three days ago, I saw wheat looking badly. It was damaged thirty per cent. In Illinois it was damaged twenty per cent. off of last year's average.

There is no hog cholera in Kansas and never has been. The Kansas hog crop is very large and is increasing. I see a disposition all over southern Kansas for farmers to go into stock. Sheep raising north of the Nation has been a back-set. The sheep have a disease called scab. Good open land can be had along the Santa Fe road almost anywhere in southwestern or middle Kansas for from $5 to $12 per acre. By this I mean black, alluvial land, sure of fifty to sixty bushels of corn to the acre, and where there never has been any hog cholera. Southwestern Kansas presents a good opening for any emigrant who wants to get rich.

THE NEW WARDEN.

The appointment, by the Governor, of Col. W. C. Jones, of this city, to be warden of the penitentiary, was somewhat of a surprise to his friends, and perhaps also to himself.

Since, in any event, a democrat must necessarily receive the appointment, we know of no one in the State whom we had rather see in the place than Col. Jones.

It is an onerous position, and one that requires an extraordinary degree of executive ability, tact and judgment; whether any particular individual will succeed or fail, is largely a matter of experiment, and judging from Col. Jones' antecedents, we think he is as likely to successfully fill the place as any man that could have been named.

W. C. Jones emigrated with his father from Wisconsin to Kansas Territory in 1839. In 1861 he entered the service as Lieutenant in the 3rd, afterwards 10th regiment Kansas volunteers. He was soon promoted to Captain, and served in that capacity during the war, although he was often in command of the regiment or of independent detachments. He commanded the provost guard of St. Louis in the winter of 1864-5, and maintained the peace and order of the city in the face of a most turbulent and hostile populace. After the regiment was reorganized in 1864 and went south, he was almost constantly in command, and participated in the battle of Nashville and the series of actions under Geo. H. Thomas, which resulted in the destruction of Hood's army. Later he took part in the siege and capture of Mobile, and with his regiment led the bloody but successful assault on Fort Blakely, one of the most formidable defenses of the city, being among the very first to scale the enemy's works. He was mustered out with his regiment at the close of the war. In 1867 he was commissioned Lieut. Col. of the 49th regiment, which served against the Indians on the plains, and after the resignation of Col. Crawford, commanded the regiment until it was mustered out. This record as a soldier is without a blemish, and his personal character and habits are exemplary in every respect. We wish we could say as much for his politics. He was formerly an ardent Republican, but through some dissatisfaction, seeded from the party in 1872, and together with Judge Acres and a few others, organized the Democratic party in this county, and has since acted with that party.

As neighbors and friends of Col. Jones, we are glad that he has received the appointment, and hope he will make a successful officer, notwithstanding the disadvantage he labors under by reason of the great popularity of his predecessor. We know he has the courage, and we believe he will develop the judgment and discretion which will make him master of the situation.

EDITORIAL CORRESPONDENCE.

KANSAS CITY, April 11, 1883.

A desire to see Hamlet impersonated by the great tragedian Lawrence Barrett, led me yesterday to take a turn to the "future great" at the mouth of the Kaw. I arrived duly, and by great good fortune fell in with my esteemed friend Mr. L. W. Kepling, who though now a Wyandotte attorney, still keeps his bachelor quarters in Kansas City. Mr. Kepling, as his intimate friends well know, is not a lawyer alone, but a cultured and widely read man, and a thinker. His pleasant companionship and hospitality have rendered my short stay doubly pleasant, and his editorial appreciation of Hamlet greatly heightened my own enjoyment of the play.

But I was disappointed in Lawrence Barrett. He is undoubtedly great in Hamlet, but he is not satisfying. One all the time feels that there are heights he does not reach, depths that he does not sound. While his elocution is thrilling, one cannot help feeling that they might be infinitely more so. He has undoubtedly made a great study of the play. He plays it intellectually, and his conception is, on the whole, I think, exalted and right. But in particular passages he certainly sacrifices the logical interpretation to the striving for dramatic effect. As an instance of this may be mentioned the end of the soliloquy in which he determines upon trapping the King by the traveling players. The most natural conception of the words, "The play's the thing wherein I'll catch the conscience of the King," is to my mind one of excited but suppressed soliloquy. But Barrett's interpretation was far different. The words quoted above were delivered in a tone of voice nearly approaching a yell, and accompanied with a striding exit that might have befitted Olympian Jove. Barrett does not dare to depend much upon mere personal presence or facial expression. Repose is evidently distasteful to him. He is not striking in personal appearance, nor effective enough in facial expression to be powerful outside of action and speech. He wants to be talking. He likes to hear his own voice and note the effect of his acting. He is undoubtedly self-conscious, and shows it—shows it in a hundred transparent bids for applause. With Hamlet's own excellent advice to his players forever ringing in his ears, one would surely think he would not "strut and bellow." But strut he unquestionably does. I am probably not dueated up to the stage carriage, but Barrett's stride is undeniably revolting. Its like was surely never seen in Heaven or earth, least of all in the refined and melancholy Dane.

It is doubtless presumptuous in a layman to deal so freely with the great Barrett. But this is a free country. I have mentioned only the things in which I was disappointed. After all the play was powerful. Many times the great audience was aroused to great enthusiasm, and broke into storms of applause; and after every act, Barrett was called before the curtain. One cannot remain unmoved under such acting, and it is agreeable to have such a waking up occasionally. Keene plays here next week.

BEANS AND BACON.

Lee's Surrender Celebrated.—The G. A. R. Boys have a jolly time.

—Andersonville Andrews.

At the special meeting of McCook Post No. 51, on last Monday evening, the following recruits were mustered: Rev. E. S. Miller, Rev. S. S. Westberry, J. W. George, S. D. Morehouse, A. B. Richardson, F. H. Cassida, G. W. Carner, Amos, G. D. Briggs, Wm. Knapp, and W. J. Huck. C. F. J. Barth was elected to membership, but was not present for muster. After mustering the boys partook of a supper of baked beans, black coffee, etc., followed by a camp-fire, during which Comrade Dr. Andrews, of Andersonville fame, and comrade with McElroy, author of "Andersonville," gave us an excellent address, giving a part of his experience while in Southern prisons, all of which was fully endorsed by Comrade Hale. "John Brown" was then sung with a vim. Comrade Thayer was then called upon to give his experience in connection with the "Swamp Angel" near Charleston, S. C. Comrade Davis gave us a history of "Bob," which was quite rich and racy indeed. Com. Moss gave us the facts concerning that famous "Burn."

The post then listened to a very spicy history of "Slackey," told as only Capt. Stover can tell army experience.

Mr. Editor, it might be entertaining to your readers to know the condition of our post, and the States and regiments from which its members have come. The post is in a flourishing condition now, having 75 members, with several more to muster. We propose to number 100, if possible, by the time of the National Encampment at Denver in July next. The following States and regiments are represented:

21st Maine, 12th Mass., 11th Pa., 59th and 190th Pa. Inf., 7th and 11th Md. Inf., 1st and 16th West Va. Inf., 3rd and 9th O. Cav. and 43d, 60th, 62d, 71st, 113th, 121st, 133d O. V. I., 3rd and 16th O. Batt., 3d Indian H. G., 7th, 10th, 17th, 28th, 39th, 41st, 73d, 74th, 82d, 120th, 121st Ind. V. I., 3d and 11th Ill. Cav., 26th, 39th, 40th and 14th Kan. Cav., 3d, 5th, 9th, 10th, 12th

Kan. Vol. Inf., 9th Mo. Cav., 3d, 11th, 23d, 33d Mo. Inf., 28th Mich. Inf., 17th Iowa Inf., 11th Wis. Inf., 1st Neb. Inf. and 3d U. S. Engineers.

Recently the Post received a set of war maps from the war department, showing of the following battlefields: Antietam, Appomattox, C. H. Bermuda Hundred, Chancellorville, Cold Harbor, Fredericksburg, Harper's Ferry, High Bridge and Farmville, Jetterville and Sailors' Creek, North Anna, Petersburg and Five Forks, Richmond, South Mountain, Totopotomoy, Spottsylvania, C. H., the Wilderness, Atlanta Campaign, sheets 1, 2, 3, 4 and 5, operations in front of Atlanta, Blakely, Chattanooga, Ft. Fisher, Ft. Fisher and vicinity, Franklin Knoxville, Nashville, Shiloh, Vicksburg, and Gen. Sherman's marches during '64-5, showing route of each corps under his command. These maps have been mounted, and are ready for inspection, and can be seen in Comrade Allison's office.

Comrades, let us rally round the old flag as of yore, and muster McCook Post as the largest post in Southern Kansas. Let us urge the formation of the "Woman's Auxiliary" and the organization of the Sons of Veterans. Let each comrade appoint himself a committee of one and bring one recruit prior to the time of the National Encampment.

"Rally round the flag, boys,
Rally once again."

A COMRADE.

WHAT THEY SAY ABOUT IT.
The appointment of Wm. C. Jones, of Allen county, to the warden of the penitentiary, will give good satisfaction. He has lived in Kansas many years, and went into the war as captain of Co. I, Tenth Kansas Infantry, promoted to major, and served until the war closed. He also served as lieutenant-colonel in the Indian campaign in Kansas in 1868.—Lawrence Journal.

Colonel W. C. Jones has assumed charge of the penitentiary, and will, if he is the Jones he was years ago, be the warden and not the tool of anybody. At the first announcement we did not exactly remember who Colonel Jones was, but a sight of the man brings the knowledge of him years ago. We understand the appointment was unsolicited, and that no pledges were exacted from him, and that he intends to use his judgment and so manage the penitentiary as to best promote the interests of the State. If he does this he will merit the thanks of the people. He is capable and honest, and must take warning from Governor Glick's failure, and not trust too implicitly in seductive walks by moonlight. Colonel Jones has the brains, and we trust he will use them, follow his convictions of right, and we know he will. If he listens to the intrigues who have controlled the administration during the past three months, he will prove a failure.—Lawrence Journal.

Colonel W. C. Jones, of Allen county, the recently appointed warden of the penitentiary, is an old citizen of the State. He was captain of Co. I, Tenth Kansas, during the entire war, and at the close of the war assisted to raise a regiment for services on the border against the Indians, of which he was lieutenant-colonel. He was a Republican until 1872, and knows all the tricks worth knowing, which our Democratic friends often accuse Republicans of. In 1872 he joined the Greeley movement, from which he took his valuable fund of political lore straight into the Democratic camp. The Colonel knows just how mean Ben Simpson, John Speer, the Thachers, Funston, W. A. Johnson, J. Snoddy and the balance of the fellows are, because they were boon companions for years. Personally, he is a man of ability, kindly heart, generous nature, and we believe, will make a better warden than any Democrat not favored with his early associations.—Fort Scott Monitor.

The Capital publishes an interview with Capt. Jones in which he is credited with the following: "I never was an applicant for the position, in fact never thought of it, and the dispatch was a complete surprise to me, strange as it may seem. I had an order from a friend of mine in Illinois for a carload of corn and I took three or four teams and went over to the farm and was sitting up in the crib waiting for the boys to load up when the dispatch came. You can see I was greatly surprised. Of course I sent an answer accepting, saying I would be up to Topeka the next day. By the way I want to say, I have a hundred acre corn field on my farm from which I cribbed 8,000 bushels of corn by consent. Mind you I am not giving that as a reason for the Governor appointing me, but to show that I had meat at home and was not suffering for office. Yes, I will go up to-day and my bond will be filed Monday. I must be off to catch the train—old soldier grow garbulous as they grow old. Good-bye."

The new warden of the state penitentiary, W. C. Jones, of Allen county, is a good deal of a surprise in many respects. The appointment is satisfactory in that Mr. Jones is not well known enough to be in any way obnoxious. It is very unfortunate for Mr. Jones, however, that he follows so good a man and so fine an officer as Warden Hopkins. The fact that Jones is a sort of a renegade Republican makes no difference in the feeling engendered upon his appointment, except that many Democrats are grievously disappointed that a simon pure stalwart did not receive an office to which is attached such a fine salary and so many perquisites. There were Democrats of greater prominence than Jones who would have sacrificed themselves upon the altar of the state, but Mr. Glick no doubt thought that Jones' obscurity was the gubernatorial safety in making the appointment, and there is no doubt that his excellency was about right.—K. C. Journal.

ADDITIONAL LOCALS.

The social at the hall last Wednesday evening was a success in every respect.

Mrs. A. P. Brewer came down from Lawrence last Wednesday and will probably remain several days.

Mrs. Morey came down from Garnett last Saturday and spent Sunday with her daughter, Miss May.

Mr. J. P. Fry, of Muncie, Ind., a young man who lived with Wm. Knapp a number of years, is expected here next week on a visit.

Miss Thornber has just received a large stock of new millinery goods to which she invites the attention of the ladies of Iola and vicinity.

Richards, Lakin & Ireland have received three or four carloads of goods this week, and the quondary with them now is where to put them. Enlarge, gentlemen.

By invitation of the pulpit committee, G. W. Meiton, of Oange City, will preach at the Baptist church next Sunday morning and evening.

Mr. J. T. Watson, a substantial farmer of Bartholomew county, Ind., and a friend of Mr. A. J. Estep, came in Wednesday. He wants to locate somewhere in the vicinity of Iola.

The new council was inducted into office last Monday evening. The only change in the administration, was the appointment of C. H. Danley as street commissioner in place of Jas. Simpson, resigned.

Mrs. G. W. Apple filled an order from Chicago for a dozen rose bushes, one day this week. We thought it was a proud enough thing to be shipping corn to Illinois, but to be sending flowers there is better yet.

Miss Alice Hartley with her little sister Lou, returned Wednesday from a long visit to friends in Ohio. She has had a very pleasant time, but is glad to get back to Kansas and Iola. She was warmly welcomed by a host of friends.

Charles Casmire opened his skating rink for the first time Wednesday evening. He has a splendid floor, and the interest in the sport will doubtless be maintained for a long time. Only a few of his skates had arrived on Wednesday, but the rest were expected yesterday.

There will be a pound social at the residence of Mrs. J. E. Ireland, on Wednesday evening April 18th, to which all are cordially invited. The proceeds of the social are to be given to the Orphan Asylum, at Leavenworth. Mrs. Niles, the agent of the asylum, is expected to be present.

Most of the time in Judge Christy's court this week, has been occupied in the hearing of a "work and labor" suit of Smith & Son against J. E. Hobby, of Moran, J. H. Fisher appearing for plaintiffs, and Richards and Knight for the defendant. We go to press before the decision has been rendered, but there will probably be a small judgment in favor of plaintiff.

Dr. Andrews delivered the last lecture in his course on Wednesday evening. The doctor has delivered twelve lectures in all, and they have proven a most valuable and interesting series. He is not what would be called a finished orator, but he understands his business, and what he says is worth hearing and remembering. He goes from here to Humboldt where we bespeak for him a liberal patronage.

The proprietors of the Mineral Well are preparing to make extensive improvements in their hotel and cottages in the way of new floors and roofs. In fact they have had their material on the ground for two weeks but have been unable to get mechanics to do the work. Which lends us to remark that there is work here, and will be all summer, for a good many more tradesmen than we now have. If any one has a friend at some other place who is a carpenter or a brick layer or a plasterer, send him this paper with this item marked.

Rev. T. C. Coffey and family will leave for Sabetha, their new home in a few days. We are heartily sorry to lose Mr. Coffey. He has done a grand work for the Baptist Church here, largely increasing the membership, and putting it on a sound financial basis.
